GENERAL MCCLELLAN AND JEFF. DAVIS.—The San Francisco Call, in reference to General McClellan's antecedents, relates the following incident:

While his regiment was stationed at Point Isabel Captain McCoy was the garrison commander of Matamoras. When the first idea of a march was ordered to proceed to Monterey to join the army under General Taylor, Captain McCoy's company being in the van were attacked by a band of ambushed guerillas, and several of the company fell. McCoy immediately ordered a charge, but finding the enemy and pursued them some distance, but finally, looking for reinforcements, and that his company was some four hundred yards in the rear, and that his only companion was Lieutenant Colvine, who, we are sorry to say, is now in the rebel ranks. Arriving at Camargo, Colonel Lane was ordered to return to Matamoras and do garrison duty, and allow Colonel Jeff. Davis' Mississippi regiment to advance as reinforcements. Captain McCoy being still in the advance, declared that the forward move by rank belonged to the Indianians, and that no troops should pass until orders were received from the Commanding General."

After the close of the war, a party of officers were dining at the White Hall, in New Orleans. Among those present were Colonel Jeff. Davis and Captain R. H. McCoy. During the evening, the above incident being alluded to, Colonel Davis said: "Had I allowed the Indiana regiment to have advanced, we would have lost the battle of Buena Vista, for the troops from that State are all cowards." Captain McCoy immediately jumped to his feet, and advancing towards Davis, replied: "That's a d—n lie, sir," and then breaked the face of the Colonel between his thumb and forefinger. A challenge was passed, but the matter was hushed up.

THEIR IGNORANCE AND DEGRADATION.—Gen. Corcoran stated lately in his Trenton and New York speeches, that the "poor whites" of the South were the most ignorant people he ever saw, and that they knew nothing but what they were told by their leaders, and were but tools in their hands. In his Boston speech he said this:

"He thought the degradation of white men at the South could not be overrated, and spoke of the educated higher classes as ruling the masses with a despotic hand. Had he known how degraded a portion of the people of this country were, it might have prevented his ever becoming a citizen. Men had sit in the halls of state, and taken oaths year after year, who were false to them all the time! There were regiments at the South where nine hundred of the men had to sign their name with a cross. It is easy to make such people believe anything, and by falsifying facts and practicing upon their ignorance, the men who had been traitors for thirty years had led them into this rebellion."

MOTIVES IN WASHINGTON.—There were all sorts of reports in the Eastern cities on the late approach of the rebel army towards Washington and the reappointment of McClellan, and some of them went to the extent of a rupture in the Cabinet. The following from the New York Express of Sept. 4th is a specimen:

"There are all sorts of rumors here, respecting divisions in the Cabinet, ruptures in the Cabinet, etc., in consequence of the President's re-appointment of General McClellan, but they are not reliable. One report is that all the members of the Cabinet but Smith and Blair Seward not present resigned, protesting, but the President declined to accept their resignations.

The reinstatement of General McClellan is understood to have been brought about, mainly, by the demand of the army, almost in mass.

General Halleck lent the whole force of his influence to the reinstatement of McClellan, and state, it is said, such was the condition of the two armies if Pope and Rebel that the only practical Alternative left the Administration was Stonewall Jackson in Washington, or the organizing capacity of McClellan to the front.

GENERAL HOUSTON.—The New Orleans Louisiana Advocate of August 21st has the following from a correspondent:

I hear that a number of papers report the death of Sam Houston, late Governor of the State of Texas. As I am lately from Galveston and Houston, I can explain the probable cause. In the report, in April last he was very ill from a cold; the steamer Dimon, running from Galveston to Houston, passed his place, and one day brought the report of his death to Houston. The flags both at Houston and Galveston were at half mast, and his obituary appeared in the papers. The return trip of the boat brought a contradiction of the report, however, and I have seen him in Houston several times since.

TREATMENT TO TRAITORS.—Quite an excitement occurred in the city of Erie, Pennsylvania, recently. A Secretan named Scailes, upon hearing of the late battles before Richmond, shouted "long live Jeff. Davis," etc., when he was seized by a mob, who, after dressing him in a dirty pond, got him out of the town on a rail. They would have hung the fellow but for the interference of a few citizens. The Bloomsburg (Pa.) Times, also a secession paper, was gutted, burned, and the materials dashed into the river. The people would have hanged the editor if they had caught him. He took the oath, and after he had taken it said he would not regard it. This enraged the people that he was compelled to flee for his life.

BEAUTIFUL SENTIMENT.—When our troops arrived at Carleton named Mesilla Valley, a gentleman from Texas, connected with the expedition, was among the foremost, while his brother, who was impressed into the Confederate service, was among the retreating rebels who last left.

Practice says that Albert Pike resigns his command in Arkansas on the ground that he is unpopular with the Indians and fail. He must be afraid that his brother savages, if they should get hungry, might eat him.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCT. 7, 1862

Eastern News.

The Sacramento Union of the 30th ultimo, in speaking of the late news from the seat of war in Virginia, gives our views in full relative to the probable value of such meagre telegraphic accounts, as to the probable results which can or may be expected to follow from late and important movements among the armies in the field.

The dispatches from the East are brief, but important. McClellan has moved and the Peninsular campaign in Virginia has opened more promptly than we had any reason to anticipate. The passage of the Potomac by the Army of the Virginia may be an extremely difficult operation. McClellan succeeded in getting Sumner's corps and Burnside's artillery across at Harper's Ferry by the afternoon of Friday, September 26th. General Williams' division occupied Maryland Heights, which command the Ferry. Sumner's corps advanced and took post on Bolivar Heights, about a mile from the Ferry. It was expected that the infantry of Burnside's corps would cross on a pontoon bridge on Saturday, 27th.—Since the evening of the 26th no intelligence has been received from that quarter. The inference is that the rebel movement has renewed the embargo on telegraphic accounts of operations on the Upper Potomac. It is quite probable that there has been serious work during the interval. Reconnoissances from Washington have established the fact of a grand concentration of the forces of Lee and Jackson in the Shenandoah Valley. Those Generals have to fear an attack in front from McClellan, and an assault upon flank or rear from Heintzleman and Sigel, who are expected to advance through the gaps of the Blue Ridge. Their obvious policy is to seize the opportunity afforded by the crossing of the Potomac to deliver a sudden and staggering blow, and then to turn to meet the column from the East. Heretofore, the rebel Generals have seldom neglected to avail themselves of such opportunities. If they have attacked before McClellan succeeded in getting the bulk of his army across the river, the situation has been critical, and the conflict desperate. Fortunately, the fords remain practicable, as is shown by Burnside making use of one to get over his artillery, so that at Ball's Bluff or Chickahominy disaster is not to be seriously apprehended. Supposing that the main force of the army, or a sufficient number of divisions succeeded in crossing and getting into position previous to the expected onset; the Union troops would be compelled to fight with the river in the rear, as the rebels were at Antietam. The consolation is that the enemy concentrated in the Shenandoah Valley, are in a position where, with vigor and rapidity and concert on the part of the Union Generals, they may not only be baffled, but bagged. We have not been schooled by the generalship displayed in this war into indulgence in sanguine anticipations, but we think that if there is no failure on the part of Heintzleman and Sigel may be trusted with the rest of the work.

RE-OPENED.—It will be seen by advertisement in to-days paper that the Nicaragua route will again be re opened on 21st of present month, at which time the steamship Moses Taylor is advertised to sail from San Francisco to San Juan del Sur, at which place a connection will be made with the steamship America. This route is said to be 700 miles shorter than any other route by sea, and perhaps is the best, but we have been so frequently humbugged with an opposition line of steamships for the Atlantic States; that we fear this too will again be closed before any practical benefits can accrue to the traveling public. However, we hope our fears may not be realized.

A PATRIOTIC SEWING MACHINE MAN.—In the Seventeenth Connecticut Regiment, which lately arrived at New York City from Bridgeport, Ct., Elias Howe, Jr., the well known inventor of the sewing machine needle, and whose patent yields the princely income of a quarter of a million of dollars annually, serves as a private. Howe is a citizen of Bridgeport, Connecticut, and at a war meeting held in that town a few weeks since, subscribed two thousand dollars to the fund for raising volunteers, at the same time enrolling his name as a volunteer. More recently he presided at a war meeting in the Eleventh ward of Brooklyn, New York, where his city residence is situated, and subscribed a thousand dollars to the war fund. In the address he reiterated his intention of entering the ranks, and asked his auditors to join him in the battle field.—Union.

NAVAL.—Nearly a hundred vessels have been chartered lately by Government for temporary service. Several steamers and gunboats have sailed with sealed orders, and the new iron-clads were being rapidly turned off. Probably we shall hear before long of new expeditions against rebel ports. A fleet of iron-clads may enter Charleston, inaugurate the siege of all the forts, and reduce that nest of treason and sources of rebellion. Then Savannah and Mobile remain to be "developed," and some more work is needed at Vicksburg to accelerate the opening of the Mississippi.

THE KNIGHTS OF THE GOLDEN CIRCLE IN TROUBLE.—It is understood that the circles of the Knights of the Golden Circle in Washington, Georgetown and Baltimore, are to be broken up. It is possible that all the known members of this organization in those cities will be immediately arrested.

Salem Correspondence.

SALEM, OCT. 2, 1862.

The third Fair day has passed. We have had a few sprinkles, but not enough to spoil the fun. Fewer came in the morning, on account of the rain.

I have been looking around upon the tables in the Hall as in. The display is not what Mr. Schiff's with his usual energy would make it, but there is a fine display of animal and vegetable productions of modern days, which strike me as the substantial and useful. I was a little disappointed in the display of fruit.

We cannot take time to enumerate the articles which I will say but I expected more in reference to things of exhibition which I feel sure would be there. There was a case of fruit presented to the farmers and others makers, and I do not know whose name and gun sacks. Capt. J. Newmarket is the contributor to Portland. This contribution deserves to that expensive exhibition. I now beg to change my opinion and announce to the inserting Mrs. Thanks to Mrs. Mr. Elliott.

In the Department of Confectionery, Cakes was cake which was well calculated to make one's mouth water, and I heard something for some time. Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Gallup and Mrs. Stevens, as I understand, figure extensively in this Department. That Stanton has presented a large number of contributions.

I hope the pumpkins fall which shows how to be a practical and industrious farmer. I would be to say he will talk to the premiums. Won't Pat open the mouths of some of his brother farmers who have dried hay, with eyes drowsy, while he was selecting his potatoes, his wheat, his beets, his corn, his barley, his oats, and twenty other kinds of seeds? Fair Stanton takes them by the bushels, as every farmer should. I don't believe he had a single animal starve to death last winter.

I'll be satisfied Mr. Editor, if I can condense my thoughts at this time in any proper or useful manner. When I speak of a thing, my ideas run into all sorts of ramifications. I can't help it I am sure. Cut 'Em.

There are now before me, ranged on the railing above the great inside and over the fruit, some thirty varieties of grapes. Most of them were ripe. There was the Delaware and the Concord and the Hartford Prolific—which were all the varieties which could boast of American origin—and these were good. And there was the Black Hamburg, the Tramner, the White Muscatine and the Frontignan, a terrible unpronounceable foreign name, to be followed by many others of French names, that I can't write, and wouldn't if I could. Mons. Machut, of Clackamas county, grows all these grapes to perfection out of doors—which is a new idea to me—knowing as I do that these same foreign grapes cannot be grown except under glass in the Atlantic States. I believe that only grapes can be selected that will have ample time to mature in our summers. If that be so, we can yet make our own wines. I do not call those needles which necessitate the use of a large quantity of sugar to save them and to make them palatable, as wine. They are sour, and nothing less, though I dont ess they imitate the palate very deliciously. Ah!

Would'nt you like, Mr. Editor, a slice of bacon from a specimen left among the farm products by Mr. Bridge of Josephine county? Well, sir, if you will choose a slice about one-third of an inch thick across the side of his ample contribution, you will get in quantity about ten pounds—or less. We wonder if all the bacon in Josephine compares with this specimen now in our mind's eye? If you can be sure of this, I will make over there the coming winter, or stay at home—which is the first best thing.

I am becoming worse and worse, Mr. Editor. Why is it that a staid, prudent, chaste writer like myself should get in this way? Ah, I have it, as true as you breathe. Just now we were indulging with a refreshing glass of new cider. It was unfermented, and of course there is no spirit in unfermented cider. Cider must become sour and worthless before that "awful devil," alchohol is developed; and, as I was saying, we were indulging in a refreshing glass of the unfermented article, when A. G. Walling stood by us on his way to the Secretary's stand, to enter for premium a bottle of plum brandy. It was suggested that it would give aroma and point to the cider. A few drops were tried. We don't think it affected us at all. Do you, Mr. Editor? It is true our ideas radiated, exhausted, obliquated, but we do not charge it to the innocent beverage. We charge it—in fact we do not know what to charge it to—but have made up our mind to continue our interesting developements of some things we saw and heard at the Fair, when favorable circumstances shall induce us to write again—which we apprehend will be quite as soon as you want to hear from us.

We have had a deluge of rain this afternoon; but still people are moving to the Fair grounds—men and women. The entry books are now in the hands of the committees, who will doubtless complete their examinations to-day. Yours in confusion,

From HOPE, Oct. 3, 1862.

So, my last letter is "powerfully weak" is it? Isn't that a mighty "slick" way of dodging a whole string of questions? It was written by Mr. Pearne because it contained "so many lies," was it? Mr. Bush, how much would you give to know who wrote it? Eh! You are "some" on calling hard names and befouling the objects of your hate, and you "come to time" as sharp practice in politics, you display it like on that; but you can't always hit it in "guessing." It pears, like you've tried that before and made a powerful weak "cut" at it. I "guess" that your "guesses" aren't so much better than other people's. I "kinder calkerlate" so, anyhow.

I have "a few more of the same sort left," as old Hillman, the razor strop man used to say. I mean, I have a few more questions to ask. Has Mr. Bush ever published Nesmith's vote on admitting Stark? or expelling the traitor Bright? or the confiscation and tax bills? Why has'nt he? Was it because he approved them? Has he ever publicly disapproved them? What about Ten Eyck? Was it because of his love of the Union cause that Bush urged so strongly that Republicans should throw up their party before the last election? If it was, what made him insist on providing before the Eugene Convention adjourned, for the dissolution of the Union party? Was his love for both equally strong and sincere?—What did he boast McClellan's name for President in 1864, "subject to the decision of a National DEMOCRATIC Convention" for? I wonder does he think he will draw Union men with Republican "antecedents" into that gud trap? Tush! If his love for the Union itself, isn't "stronger nor that" it isn't worth the filings of a copper. Why did Bush compliment Ben Harding when elected to the Senate? Why didn't he compliment Mr. Gibbs? Gibbs' majority was the largest ever given to a candidate in Oregon, and both were Democrats in their "antecedents." Does Harding belong to the Clique and Gibbs not? Is it "powerful weak" to notice these queer things? Maybe it is.

QUIS.

"Put your trust in Abraham and in Abraham's God!" Such was the sentence with which H. B. Payne, once a Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, wound up a recent appeal to all parties to rally for the country. The effect was electric.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

LATER FROM THE EAST.

DATES TO SEPT. 30.

Gen. Nelson Killed by Gen. Jeff. Davis, at Louisville, Ky. Fight at Augusta, Ky. Rebels Defeated. Loss of Gen. D. Powell. Gen. Sumner ordered to Fort Monroe.

YREKA, OCT. 2, 1862.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 29th.—The rebels Hanse Breckinridge is their retreat at Iuka, refusing to fight until reinforced by Price at the latter's request. His troops at Monday were Rhodes, Pighalls and Richards on Mobile Grand is moving at Corinth, and will probably be ready to advance by the 1st of October.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 29th.—Advices from the battle field say the fight commenced on Bradley's command, Sept. 23d. The battle lasted 2 hours. The rebels were driven back in the Sans with loss of 200 killed and 400 wounded. Four whites killed and 40 or 50 wounded.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29th.—A Washington dispatch says that on Friday there were important movements on the Potomac. Everything for fight has commenced. Fort Monroe, Fort Morgan, near Mobile.

Tullahoma is reported to be being reinforced within a fortnight.

Union prisoners, handcuffed, Harper's Ferry, will be sent to Fort Pope to fight the Indians.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 30th.—A gentleman in Frankfort says that on Friday there were 600 rebels there. Hamilton Marshall was expected to take charge of that post.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 29th.—Brigadier General Jeff. C. Davis shot Major General Nelson, at the Galt House, to-day. A difficulty had existed between them for some time. This morning Davis demanded an apology for the language used to him a few days since, when Nelson slapped him in the face and ordered him from ward.

Davis turned away, followed Nelson, was met by a friend and followed Nelson, who was descending the stairs. Davis told him to defend himself, and shot him. He died in twenty minutes.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29.—Details of fight at Augusta, show that the place was attacked by 600 mounted men. Union forces numbering 120, took refuge in the houses and fired from the windows, killing and wounding 20.—Among the killed are three captains. One of them a younger brother of John Morgan. Among the mortally wounded was Lieut. Col. Prentice, son of Gen. D. Prentice. The citizens of the town were cursed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.

Attorney General Pixley has written an opinion on the subject of the United States Legal Tender Notes. He argues that the War Department and not the Courts is the tribunal to determine the legality of the notes. The Government may put down the Courts and declare martial law. The paper currency is a necessity of war. Congress will revoke all bank charters, and suppress the issue of all paper money except from the Treasury of the United States. The attempt to lessen the value of Government paper is treason.

Some employees of the Gas Company are to be prosecuted for attempting to reduce a meter from a cigar shop, the proprietor having insisted on paying his gas bill in Treasury Notes.

The Stamp Act goes into operation on Wednesday, but no stamps have been received in this State. All transactions in the nature of contracts and conveyances will have to be suspended until the stamps arrive.

Hiram Clark, of the firms of Abernethy, Clark & Co. and George Abernethy & Co., extensive lumber dealers, filed his petition in insolvency to-day. Debts and liabilities, over $140,000; available assets, 20,000.

A patriotic mass meeting at Watsonville yesterday, contributed $1,750 to the fund.

The Probate Court to-day refused to confirm the sales of the Broderick estate made after a sufficient quantity of property was disposed of to cover $127,500, the amount stated in the order of the Court. The homestead property is within the confirmation, but the water lots are thrown out.

The earthquake at two o'clock A. M. was the severest shock felt here since February, 1856.

LATEST FROM MEXICO.—The latest intelligence from Mexico we find in the Panama Star and Herald of the 9th inst. The dates from Vera Cruz are to August 16th.)

General Lorencez was still entrenched at Orizaba where with 2,000 men he might resist the entire Mexican force. He had 5,000 men, and reinforcements were daily expected from France. The troops were healthy. Communication between Orizaba and Vera Cruz was difficult, owing to the guerrillas who only lived by plunder and assassination. Yellow fever prevailed at Vera Cruz, and of 700 men in garrison one half were laid up. On board the fleet an equal sacrifice to the same sickness prevailed. The frigate Amazone lost all her crew, and the crew of the Mexone was beginning to succumb. Three thousand Zouaves were daily expected at Vera Cruz, who were to be employed in conveying stores and munitions of war to the interior. The 99th regiment of the line, whilst conveying 100 wagons, were attacked by guerrillas, but signally routed them. Captain de Cassel, Aide de Camp to General Lorencez, goes home with five standards taken from the enemy, to present them to the Emperor.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.—There is but little news from the South American continent. All the Republics, excepting New Grenada, are at peace.

A movement has been set on foot at Lima for the relief of men who have been wounded in Mexico in battles with the French. Its objects, in fact, are similar to those of the Washington Sanitary Commission. Circular letters have been addressed to all the principal cities on the continent.

In Florida, the rebels have seen a flaming sword in the sky. They will see worse sights than that soon; ten thousand Yankees coming to "stay" permanently on rebel estates, and make improvements.

A New Orleans letter says an expedition under Major Strong had driven the rebels out of Ponchatrain. Two were captured, five killed, and three the Federals lost. One man killed, wounded and missing was Fahy.

NATIONAL FORCES.—When the new levies are completed, the United States will possess nearl 1,200,000 soldiers in the field, equal in addition to a naval force, efficiently, equal to any in the world.

Cough.—Those who have changed our climate of Providence, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts, Experience having proved that simple remedies are the most speedy and certain relief in all cases of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping Cough, or Irritation of the Throat, would call attention to this preparation. Before serious attack may be effectually warded off. People Speakers and Singers will find them especially useful for clearing and strengthening the voice. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by all Druggists throughout the United States, Canada and South America. Depot, 21 Cedar street, New York. NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

The Daily OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

THE DAILY OREGONIAN is for sale at the Periodical Depot, corner of Front and Oak streets.

In RECORDER'S COURT, Monday, October 6th.—Charles Neal, charged with drunken and disorderly conduct: fined $10 and cost, and in default of payment, committed to jail for five days.

Samuel Weed, disorderly conduct: fined $5 and cost, and in default of payment committed to jail for five days.

LIST OF LETTERS.—Col. W. H. Rector, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Oregon, is stopping at the "Pioneer Hotel" in this city, we learn, upon a visit preparatory to his contemplated trip east of the mountains, as announced by us some days since.

ARRIVAL OF JULIA.—The Julia arrived last evening about half past eight, bringing down 185 passengers, more than one half of which were immigrants from the States. Also came 30 or 50 head of horses and several wagons. Wells, Fargo & Co. brought down about thirty pounds of gold dust. The shipment of gold dust by this trip was rather light. No news of importance from the upper country. The Julia also brought down quite a lot of immigrants with their teams and wagons.

BUILDING.—Notwithstanding the rain, we notice that improvements in the way of erection of buildings are still going on in our city. The latest edifice on the levee at the corner of Ash and Alder, is fast being completed. In appearance Messrs. Kingsley & Co. would have as fine a brick store as there is in town. Proceed with the good work, every one. Portland is irrepressibly destined to be a great city.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON ALMANAC.—Mr. S. J. McCormick of the Franklin Book Store, has laid upon our table another copy of his Oregon and Washington Almanac for the year 1863, this being the ninth year of its publication, and each time improving in form and value. The copy before us is the best for this coast we have seen for some years, being well filled with interesting statistical facts, new features, valuable receipts and sensible advice to the people of the State and Territory for whom it is intended. Every man, woman and child on the coast should have a copy of this famous Almanac.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Do not fail to look at the new advertisements in this morning's issue.

ENCLOSURE.—The enclosure of the public square is now about completed, and a substantial and respectable paling, adding much to the appearance of the place and the protection of the property and trees.

Lovers of good liquors will read advertisement of "Jimmy Castello," Shades Saloon, in another column.

WEEKLY OREGONIAN.—The Daily Evening Advertiser is yanked out at last.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION.—Amount before acknowledged—$1,999 50.

THE REGIMENT FOR THE EAST.—The San Francisco Bulletin has the following:

Numerous questions have been addressed to us of late, relative to the action being taken to raise a regiment in this State to proceed East. In the absence of any known line of positive steps being taken to organize it, and in view of the condition of affairs in our own State, we are inclined to believe the proposition will not be carried into execution.

SEWING MACHINES

ARE UNSURPASSED BY ANY FOR

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION

—AND—

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction, and such that the operator could make it take up the thread, slide on both pieces of the material, and should sew any kind of material that could be sewed.

It should be able to run as fast as a person could run it properly for that special purpose, from one thousand to four hundred stitches per minute, and from that to slow. With the tension and without changing the stitch. It should be able to make the lockstitch perfect with all kinds of cotton and paper threads, and with cotton it should have a straight needle, perfectly adapted to the shuttle.

The needle should have the eye near the point—this is absolutely necessary to perfect work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer, shirr with a shirrer, and run a tucker and gather with ease.

It should be capable of running from one thread and coarse work, to nine threads of fine cotton, or silk, changing but little the tension, and will work well with any kind of cloth to be sewed.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to take up the seam and commence sewing the first stitch, and to finish off and make the little loop.

It should have a "loop feed," no parts are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be difficult to get out of order; neither should it require much time and work to set the needle.

Just such is the Celebrated Lockstitch

It should not form a ridge on the underside of the seam.

The undersigned are General Agents for the above unrivalled machines for the Pacific States and Western Coast of Mexico.

"How much?"

The salesman, who proved to be Patrick, the porter, [illegible] hung a moment. This fact, he grasped the astonished John Chinaman with his left hand, and waving his cleaver with the right, he exclaimed:

"One dollar a pound!"

John gave one look at the cleaver, another at the face of the sable man, and yelled out:

"I take one hundred pounds!"

The bargain was thereupon closed. So much for practical reasoning.—Cal. Exchange.

Said an old preacher once: "Fellow sinners, if you were told that by going to the top of those stairs yonder" (pointing to a rickety pair at one end of the church) "you might secure your eternal salvation, and really believe it, hardly any of you would do it. But set any man to lay that there are five hundred dollars up there for you, and I'll be bound there would be such a getting up stairs as you never did see."

"Where did you come back?" asked a sleek, well-to-do citizen of a poor, half sick National soldier, just returned from McClellan's army.

"Why don't you go?" replied the soldier.
